De-Stigmatizing Patients: A Filmmaker's Prescription

John Kastner

One of Canada's most acclaimed documentary-makers, John Kastner has won four Emmys and five Emmy nominations, more than any other individual in the history of Canadian television. The honours were for his feature-length documentaries "Life with Murder" "Four Women" "Fighting Back" and "The Lifer and the Lady." In 2007 he was honored by the Academy of Canadian Cinema and Television with its Achievement Award. His most recent films, NCR: Not Criminally Responsible (2013) and "Out of Sight ,Out of Mind" have been hailed by mental health and criminal justice professionals as a ground-breaking portrait of forensic psychiatric patients. "Life with Murder" (2010), produced in co-production with the National Film Board, focuses on parents struggling to reconcile with their son after he murders his sister. As well as an Emmy, the film won Canada's Donald Brittain Gemini for Best Documentary, gold and silver Hugo awards at the Chicago Film Festival, and several other awards including a Special Jury Prize at the Houston International Film Festival. His documentary, "Monster in the Family" -- a 2-part film for CTV about an offender's war with his mother who is campaigning to keep him locked up for life -- won the same award, among others. His films have been screened at major film festivals including Berlin, Los Angeles, Chicago, San Francisco, Sheffield and, of course, Hot Docs. In recent years both Hot Docs and the Cinematheque Quebecoise in Montreal have run retrospectives on his work.

Note: Mr. Kastner is also presenting a workshop on Friday, October 23 at 4:15 p.m.

COURSES

Note that space is limited for courses.

Psychological Testing for Psychiatrists

Charles Dike, MD, MRCPsy, New Haven, CT
Madelon Baranoski, PhD, New Haven, CT

Psychological tests are an important adjunct in forensic assessments, especial in assessment of malingering and personality structure. Collaboration with psychologists can bolster forensic opinions. Psychiatrists can administer standardized personality and malingering tests that have strong psychometric properties and that are capable of withstanding Daubert challenges. Previously presented at AAPL, this course has been redesigned to incorporate 1) instruction on the administration of standardized personality tests, 2) gold-standard scoring, 3) interpretation of results, and 4) their incorporation into the psychiatric report and testimony. A brief review of cognitive testing will be enhanced by instruction on use of effort measures that can be incorporated into disability evaluations. Specific instruction will be provided on the administration and interpretation of the MMPI, MCMI, and PAI personality inventories and on effort and malingering tests including the VIP, TOMM (malingered memory) and the MFAST. The intent of this course is to enable forensic psychiatrists to administer and interpret standard testing and to consult and partner with psychologists. The course will also address pitfalls in psychological testing, the relevance of collateral, effective ways to explain testing results in testimony and common challenges on cross-examination. Case examples will and audience interactive responding will support the teaching.

Developing and Optimizing a Private Forensic Practice

William Reid, MD, MPH, Horseshoe Bay, TX
Henry Levine, MD, Bellingham, WA
Camille LaCroix, MD, Boise, ID
Robert Granacher, MD, MBA, Lexington, KY
Trent Holmberg, MD, Draper, UT

This is a practical course on developing and optimizing a private forensic practice. Some basic forensic principles will be addressed, but from an operational or business viewpoint, drawing from the faculty's substantial experience in the subject areas. Topics include client needs and relationships; qualities most important to attorneys and retaining entities that seek experts; practical issues in working with lawyers, judges, and other clients; marketing; ethics in private practice; practical "pearls" for record review, interviews & examinations, reports & affidavits, and testimony; fees, billing & collections; and office operations & business procedures. In addition to the core faculty, several other experienced practitioners from the Private Practice Committee will act as advisors during discussion periods. Committee members will provide contact information for, and encourage, follow-up or mentoring after the course and the AAPL meeting. The course will be fast-paced and intensive. A syllabus will be provided, with content that registrants can use in, or adapt to, their own practices.

Giving More Effective Lectures: Passion, Punch and Polish

Phillip Resnick, MD, Cleveland, OH

This course will provide practical advice on how to make a psychiatric presentation with punch, passion, and polish. Instruction will be given on planning a scientific paper presentation, a lecture, and a half day course. The course leader will cover the selection of a title through to the choice of closing remarks. Teaching techniques to hold the audience's attention include the use of humor, anecdotes, and vivid images. Participants will be taught to involve the audience by breaking them into pairs to solve problems with recently acquired knowledge. Participants will be told that they should never (1) read while lecturing; (2) display their esoteric vocabulary; or (3) rush through their talk, no matter what the time constraints. Tips will be given for making traditional word slides and innovative picture slides. Pitfalls of Powerpoint will be illustrated. Advice will be given on the effective use of videotape vignettes. A videotape will be used to illustrate common errors made by lecturers. The course will also cover preparation of handouts. Finally, participants will be strongly encouraged to make a three minute presentation with or without slides and receive feedback from workshop participants. Participants should plan to bring Powerpoint slides on a flash drive.

Psychological Testing of Claimed Amnesia: A Guide to Remember

Charles Scott, MD, Sacramento, CA
Barbara McDermott, PhD, Sacramento, CA

Malingered amnesia is one of the most common claims in both civil and criminal forensic evaluations. For example, of defendants who have committed a violent offense, 20% to 30% claim amnesia for their crime. Despite the high frequency of malingering, structured, evidence-based assessments of evaluatee's amnesia claims are rarely used in many civil and criminal forensic evaluations. This course will provide direct training for the participant on structured assessments useful in the detection of feigned memory and/or cognitive deficits. Several screening instruments useful in the detection of feigned memory or cognitive deficits will be presented, to include the Structured Inventory of Malingered Symptomatology (SIMS). Two instruments that use performance validity testing will be reviewed: the Test of Memory Malingering (TOMM) and the Medical Symptom Validity Test (MSVT). Relevant scale development information will be presented for each assessment, including validity, reliability and details of the normative samples. The administration of each instrument will be demonstrated with opportunities for attendees to receive supervised administration experience. Mock courtroom testimony will be conducted with audience participants with potential pitfalls highlighted when these instruments are used in forensic evaluations. This course is open to psychiatrists and psychologists only.
