LUNCH SPEAKERS

The Terrorist's Son: My Path to Peace

Zak Ebrahim

Zak Ebrahim was only seven years old when, on November 5, 1990, his father, El-Sayyid Nosair, shot and killed the leader of the Jewish Defense League. While in prison, Nosair helped plan the bombing of the World Trade Center in 1993. In one of his infamous video messages, Osama bin Laden urged the world to "Remember El-Sayyid Nosair." For Ebrahim, a childhood amid terrorism was all he knew. After his father's incarceration, his family moved more than twenty times, haunted by and persecuted for the crimes of his father. Though his radicalized father and uncles modeled fanatical beliefs, the hateful ideas never resonated with the shy, awkward boy. The older he grew, the more fully Ebrahim grasped the horrific depths of his father's acts. The more he understood, the more he resolved to dedicate his life to promoting peace. In his book, The Terrorist's Son: A Story of Choice, Ebrahim traces his remarkable journey to escape his father's terrible legacy. Crisscrossing the eastern United States, from Pittsburgh to Memphis, from a mosque in Jersey City to the Busch Gardens theme park in Tampa, The Terrorist's Son is the story of a boy inculcated in dogma and hate—a boy presumed to follow in his father's footsteps—and the man who chose a different path.

Story of a Warchild

Emmanuel Jal

Emmanuel Jal was born into the life of a child soldier on an unknown date in the early 1980s in the war-torn region of Southern Sudan. Through unbelievable struggles, Emmanuel managed to survive and go on to emerge as a recording artist, achieving worldwide acclaim for his unique style of hip hop with its message of peace and reconciliation born out of his personal experiences. Despite his accomplishments in music and film, one of Emmanuel's biggest passions is Gaa Africa, the charity he has founded to work with individuals, families and communities to help them overcome the effects of war and poverty. Besides building schools, the charity provides scholarships for Sudanese war survivors in refugee camps and sponsors education for children in the most deprived slum areas in Nairobi. Gaa Africa is now fundraising to complete phase 2 of Emma Academy, the education center in Leer named after the British aid worker, Emma McCune, who rescued Emmanuel from a life as a child soldier. In 2010, Jal released "We Want Peace," as part of the wider campaign of the same name calling for peace, protection and justice for all in Sudan. In 2012 he organized and hosted the first of its kind Peace Dinner and Concert in Juba, South Sudan.

Transforming the Police

Attorney Christy Lopez

Christy E. Lopez is a Deputy Chief in the Civil Rights Division of the U.S. Department of Justice. Ms. Lopez heads the Special Litigation Section's police practice group, which has primary responsibility for conducting "pattern-or-practice" investigations of law enforcement agencies. Ms. Lopez led the team that investigated the Ferguson Police Department and is the primary drafter of the Ferguson Report. She is currently leading the team investigating the Chicago Police Department. She also led the investigations of the New Orleans Police Department, the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department, the Newark (New Jersey) Police Department, and the Missoula, Montana investigation, which was the Division's first investigation focusing on the collective law enforcement response to allegations of sexual assault. Ms. Lopez was also the Deputy Chief overseeing the Division's recent successful litigation against the towns of Colorado City (Arizona) and Hildale (Utah), in which a jury found that the towns' law enforcement agency enforced the edicts of the a religious sect rather than the rule of law. Ms. Lopez helped formulate and draft the DOJ statement of interest in the Floyd litigation challenging the New York Police Department's stop-and-frisk practices. Christy received her B.A. from the University of California, Riverside, and her J.D. from Yale Law School. She clerked for Alaska Supreme Court Justice Robert L. Eastaugh from 1994 to 1995.

Forensic Evaluations in the Elderly

Sherif Soliman, MD, Hinkley, OH
Stephen Read, MD, San Pedro, CA
Philip Marshall, MS, Bristol, RI

The U.S. Census Bureau estimates that the number of Americans age 65 and older is expected to more than double from 2010 to 2050, from 40.2 million to 88.5 million. This staggering growth will pose new challenges. Issues such as decision-making capacity, contested guardianships, testamentary capacity, undue influence, and elder abuse will arise with increasing frequency. We will offer an approach to these evaluations. We will discuss some of the unique clinical aspects of the geriatric psychiatric evaluations. Evaluations often fail to take into account medical factors such as the presence of delirium, medication effects, and acute medical conditions. These factors take on a particular importance in older adults. We will discuss special issues such as elder abuse, financial exploitation, and undue influence. Special guest speaker, Professor Philip Marshall, will discuss his personal experience with elder financial abuse. Prof. Marshall is Brooke Astor's grandson. He successfully filed a guardianship petition after learning that his grandmother had been the victim of neglect and financial exploitation. His petition ultimately led to the criminal convictions his father, Anthony Marshall, and Atty. Francis Morrissey. He is currently devoting his time to advocating for elder justice. The audience will also work through case studies.

A major obstacle to conducting research is translating the research question into a feasible project. Clinicians can generate research questions with high clinical relevance but may lack the knowledge, experience, or mentorship to execute their ideas. This course is designed for participants who have developed ideas for a potential research project and want practical advice on how to implement their study. Participants will benefit from the interactive and individualized learning environment that this course offers. Participants wanting instruction on how to develop their research project will be expected to submit their research question to AAPL prior to the meeting. Course facilitators will then provide on-site mentorship to assist in developing the research proposal. Audience feedback and participation will be encouraged to generate topics of discussion relevant to the proposed project. As an additional incentive to participate, longitudinal mentorship will be offered to one or two participants whose project is best poised to apply for peer-reviewed funding. The aim of this mentorship would be to enhance the participant's chance of success for a grant offered by the APPL Institute for Education and Research (AIER). Course facilitators are experienced educators in research methods and grantsmanship and are actively involved in conducting research.

Participants wanting instruction on how to develop their research project will be expected to submit their research questions to AAPL prior to the meeting. Email office@appl.org prior to October 1.

Expert Testimony in Suicide Malpractice Litigation

Liza Gold, MD, Arlington, VA
Donna Vanderpool, MBA, JD, Arlington, VA
Jeffrey Metzner, MD, Denver, CO
Barry Wall, MD, Providence, RI

Forensic fellows and early career psychiatrists often have limited opportunities to view or participate in psychiatric professional negligence tort cases. This course uses a videotaped mock trial of a professional negligence claim brought against a psychiatrist after the suicide of a patient shortly after discharge from an inpatient psychiatric admission. Faculty will review the legal elements of a psychiatric professional negligence case, the roles of plaintiff's and defense experts, and the provision of trial testimony. We will review these issues through interactive use of the video before and after elements of the court proceedings, including plaintiff's testimony, the defendant psychiatrist's testimony, and the direct and cross-examination testimony of the expert witnesses. Donna Vanderpool, MBA, JD will review the legal elements and the roles of the expert witness in a psychiatric professional negligence case. Three experienced forensic psychiatrists, Barry Wall, MD, Jeffrey Metzner, MD, and Liza Gold, MD provide the testimony, respectively, of the plaintiff's expert, defense expert, and defendant psychiatrist. Experienced litigation lawyers conduct direct and cross-examination of the witnesses. Attendees will be invited to discuss all aspects of roles and testimony, including testimony regarding standard of care and challenges in providing direct and cross-examination testimony.

Neurolaw 101: Intro to Neurolaw for Forensic Psychiatrists

Octavio Choi, MD, PhD, Portland, OR
Stephen Morse, JD, PhD, Philadelphia, PA
Francis Shen, JD, PhD, Minneapolis, MN
Manish Fozdar, MD, Raleigh, NC
Vivek Datta, MD, MPH, Seattle, WA

Neurolaw is a new interdisciplinary field which examines the role of neuroscience in the law. Recent advances in neuroscience have generated an intense amount of interest in psychiatric and legal communities, due to its potential to elucidate mental states and mental capacities that are fundamental to legal decision-making. This course will present the latest research highlighting neuroscience's potential to guide determinations of criminal responsibility, legally-relevant capacities such as testamentary capacity, lie detection, pain measurement, and violence risk prediction. Discussions regarding neuroscience's potential will be balanced against current scientific, legal, and moral limitations that prevent more widespread use of neuroscience evidence in the courtroom. The ultimate aim of this course is to equip forensic psychiatrists with the skills and knowledge base to critically examine the role of neuroscience evidence in the courtroom.
